The School of Public and Global Affairs presents a graduate seminar that explores today's challenges in global crisis management. Learn about the impact of your profession within the complex crisis management system, compare international responses, and how to prepare for potential and unknown disasters.

• 3-Week Seminar: International Policing. (May 22 - June 12)

Introduction to crisis management, physical security and political risk, cyberterrorism and cybercrime; and international policing cooperation. Hybrid classes combine live Saturday kickoff and wrap-up, 3 virtual case study lectures, and a transatlantic team collaboration. Students receive a Certificate upon completion. $400.00 USD.

Live conferenced-sessions are hosted by international leaders in the UK, US and Canada who bring first-hand experience in security and intelligence, international policing cooperation and defense.

- [CA] Vince Hawkes, Director of Global Policing, International Association of Chiefs of Police; Retired Commissioner, Ontario Provincial Police
- [US] Ashan M. Benedict, Executive Assistant Chief of Police, Washington D.C. Metropolitan Police Department; Retired Special Agent in Charge A.T.F.
- [UK] Phil Murphy, Detective Chief Inspector, Thames Valley Police Dept. Facilitated by Chief Paul M. Cell, Past President, International Association of Police Chiefs
