Frequently Asked Questions

Why take Core abroad?

Cross-Cultural Perspectives (UNIV 2001) and Global Issues (UNIV 2002) are both designed to fulfill Fairleigh Dickinson University's global learning mission and focus on developing knowledge and critical thinking skills essential for success in the global economy and membership in global society. Taking one or both of these courses while studying abroad for a semester simultaneously allows you to immerse yourself in another country and culture.

Are these Core classes the same as the ones in New Jersey?

Core classes taken at the Chengdu American Center for Study Abroad, Wroxton College, and FDU-Vancouver fulfill your University Core program requirements. However, these sections are customized and contextualized to take advantage of studying in these unique locations.

Can I really take two Core classes in a single semester?

Ordinarily, only one Core class may be taken each semester. Because the Cross-Cultural Perspectives (UNIV 2001) and Global Issues (UNIV 2002) classes offered in China, Vancouver and Wroxton are integrated with an entire study abroad experience, an exception is made.

What will it cost?

You will pay your regular FDU tuition (for up to 18 credits) and receive your regular financial aid package. Special grants are available through the FDU Office of Study Abroad to help cover travel costs. Wroxton College provides a comprehensive room and board package for an additional charge. The Chengdu Center provides on-campus housing for an additional charge, as well as convenient access to many inexpensive meal options. FDU-Vancouver will help you find affordable student housing nearby but does not offer a room and board package.

How do I sign up?
