Laura was born and raised in Colombia; during her teenage years she moved to El Salvador where she completed her high school education. Upon graduation, after looking for options in different countries, she decided to come to FDU Vancouver to do a Bachelor of Business Administration degree, majoring in International Business.

Her passion for learning other languages and cultures led her to join the Global Scholars program at the University where she was elected as a student representative for her class year for three consecutive semesters.

As a member of the Model United Nations Club she represented the University in the Harvard World Model United Nations Association in South Korean in 2015 where she participated in debates with students from all over the world.

Currently she is an active member of the Toastmasters Club where she practices her public speaking skills. Last summer she worked as an intern at, Investors' Group, a financial services company. During that time she honed her organizational skills, applied her knowledge of finance and learned about the financial industry in Canada.

Recently Laura was invited to join the Beta Gamma Sigma Honor Society as a result of being placed in the top 10% of her class. Upon graduation Laura wants to work in the international trade industry where she will have the opportunity to negotiate with multinational companies from all over the world and import or export products to or from Canada.
